

"Hugo Roberts" appears in these books:

▶ at least 25 references in Heartwood by James Lee Burke

Source: www.amazon.com

1. on Page 28:
"... walls. You were in the saddle with his wife. Stop thinking like a tree stump.,, Two DAYS LATER THE sheriff, Hugo Roberts, telephoned the office and asked me to walk across the street. "What for?" I asked. ..."
2. on Page 29:
"... the original sandstone and log jail that had been built when Deaf Smith was a frontier village in the 1870s. Hugo Roberts had not been elected but promoted into the office after his predecessor was murdered with an ax last year. He ..."
3. on Page 35:
"... without answering. Wilbur glanced up from his work, then went on shoving a stack of splintered boards into the flames. "Hugo Roberts drove you out in the hills?" I said. Wilbur sucked in one side of his mouth. "He showed me what ..."
4. on Page 36:
"... me and took off without giving me no money. The insurance is gonna take care of it, anyway." "Listen to Hugo Roberts and youll be chopping cotton on Huntsville Farm." "He's the man with the power." "Goodbye WIbur." I walked back out ..."
5. on Page 38:
"... hair neady combed, his jaws ruddy and closely shaved, his eyes as placid and secure as a Puritan theologian 's. "Hugo Roberts redecorated Wilbur Pickett's house late Friday afternoon. He also stuck a nine-millimeter down Wilbur's fly," I said. ..."
6. on Page 39:
"... HEARTWOOD 39 "I see Hugo Roberts five times a day. You don't have to tell me about his potential." "I think he's more interested in a ..."
7. on Page 41:
"... escorted Esmeralda Ramirez, her wrists cuffed behind her, into the squat, one-story sandstone building that served as the office of Hugo Roberts. I went back to my desk and tried to resume work. But I could not get out of my mind ..."
8. on Page 42:
"... is closed." "III just tube a minute," I said, and went between them and pushed open the heavy oak door. Hugo Roberts was sitting behind his desk, bent forward , his elbow propped on his blotter, toking on his cigarette while he ..."
9. on Page 64:
"... she and I were creating a memory for which I would never find an adequate surrogate . THE NEXT MORNING HuGo Roberts left a message on my office answering machine. "We just made a second trip out to Wilbur Pickett's place. Guess ..."
10. on Page 66:

"... 66 JAMES LEE BUR%E wiry we allowed people like Hugo Roberts to dwell in our midst. . By the time I had listened to his voice on the message machine and ..."

11. on Page 73:

"... HEARTWOOD 73 taken in Hugo Roberts's office looked like purple and yellow carrots under my skin. I dipped a sponge in a bucket of water and ..."

12. on Page 77:

"... like air leaking from a balloon. "Yes. It's a terrible thing. I've been keeping in touch by telephone," he said. "Hugo Roberts's trained cretins picked up Skyler Doolittle on a bogus beef. I think you know what I'm talking about," I said. ..."

13. on Page 94:

"... a beached, worm-scrolled cottonwood until my arm throbbed. JEFF DEITRICH DIDN'T RETURN home that morning or even by that afternoon. Hugo Roberts and his deputies began ..."

14. on Page 95:

"... campgrounds and the wooded promontory high above the river, called the Cliffs, where teenage kids smoked dope and made out. Hugo Roberts and his deputies were obviously grunts for Earl Deitrich and would exercise damage control for him, but unfortunately for Earl ..."

15. on Page 96:

"... have you cleaning litter bwaes at the animal shelter," Jeff said. "Your wife?" Hugo said. "We got married in Mexico." Hugo Roberts laughed and lit a cigarette. He removed ..."

16. on Page 110:

"... scalp, his face bright with a pink glaze. "Who was that on the phone?" I asked after he hung up. "Hugo Roberts, who else? What do you want?" he said. "I called the FBI and a homicide cop in Houston. I thought ..."

17. on Page 111:

"... HEARTWOOD III "What was that blowup with Hugo Roberts about?" I said "None of your business. But I'll tell you this much. Kippy Jo had traces of Grimes's blood ..."

18. on Page 120:

"... area still showed in the back of his scalp where I had driven his head into the log wall of Hugo Roberts's-office. He removed the sunglasses from his face and pinched the red marks on the bridge of his nose. His mouth ..."

19. on Page 122:

"... Austin. At the time I even thought he would be better off, safe from the torment visited upon him by Hugo Roberts's deputies. I paid little attention to the man with fan-shaped sideburns chained hand and foot next to him. THAT EVENING ..."

20. on Page 132:

"... picked up the phone and punched in Marvin Pomroy's number. "I'm looking at some of the expert paperwork done by Hugo Roberts's deputies. For some reason it was filed in the basement with documents that are a hundred years old," I said. ..."

21. on Page 150:

"... the deputies' bullpen gave him relief "I think we ought to scour them cliffs above the river," he said to Hugo Roberts. "What for? They ain't hurt the guards on the bus. I don't see no great danger out there," Hugo said. ..."

22. on Page 153:

"... glass and chased it with Carta Blanca. This was the good life. It might even get a lot better after Hugo Roberts destroyed his remaining lung with cigarettes. Who was a better candidate for Hugo's replacement than Kyle Rose? He lay his ..."

23. on Page 168:

"... west. He heard Kippy Jo behind him. "I'll call 911," she said. "It won't do no good. It'll just bring Hugo Roberts and them thugs of his back out here." "Come back in the house," she said, tugging at his arm. "No. ..."

24. on Page 213:

"... were put in abeyance, and working people, college students, -farmers, the business community, the mayor and his family, even Hugo Roberts and his deputies, all mingled together as though the following day held the same promise and opportunity for each of ..."

25. on Page 251:

"... Luc %s WAITED Fort Two hours at the house for the Texas Department of Public Safety or a group of Hugo Roberts 's deputies to knock on his door. But no one did. He and Esmeralda drove Ronnie back to his T-Bird ..."

▼ 4 references in Cimarron Rose by James Lee Burke

1. on Page 237:

"... on the pillow and squeezed the top of my arm. The man who had replaced the murdered sheriff was named Hugo Roberts. If you asked him how he had made his living the last thirty years, he would answer, "I ain't spent ..."

2. on Page 280:

"... 27 I walked across the street to the one-story sandstone building, which was now the office of the new sheriff, Hugo Roberts. He sat with one half-topped boot propped on his desk, the air around him layered with cigarette smoke. "You want ..."

3. on Page 311:

"... it. That afternoon Marvin rested his case, and while the rain drummed on the trees outside the window, I called Hugo Roberts to the stand. His sheriff's uniform was freshly pressed, his brass name tag full of light on his pocket, an ..."

4. on Page 313:

"... hands folded. "You were the second deputy to arrive at the picnic ground?" I asked. "Yes, that's correct." "You saw Hugo Roberts pick up a number of bottles and cans from the area around Lucas Smothers's truck?" "Yes, sir." "How many cans ..."